About the Seminar

November 6-7, 2013

at the Desert Diamond Casino and Hotel, Tucson, Arizona

The Native Nations Institute for Leadership, Management, and Policy is pleased to offer its annual, two-day Executive Education Seminar titled, “Emerging Leaders,” developed specifically for newly elected and aspiring leaders of Native nations.

This comprehensive seminar explores the realities of tribal governance, and the critical roles that leaders play in ensuring that their nations govern effectively. New or prospective leaders will receive practical knowledge and tools to help them meet the fundamental challenges of leadership, from developing the nation’s political and legal infrastructures to mobilizing their constituents to play an active role in building a strong, sustainable nation. Specialized, intensive sessions on key governance topics will prepare seminar participants to begin the process of building their personal blueprints for leadership success.

“We need more of these kinds of trainings to equip the upcoming leaders with all of the tools that they need so that they can do better among their people and their communities...”

Peterson Zah
Former Chairman and President, Navajo Nation

“Leadership” Online Course
Part of NNI’s Rebuilding Native Nations Course Series
rebuildingnativenations.com

This course explores how Native nations are reclaiming their governance systems and creating governance tools that fit their cultures and advance their nation-building goals. It provides an overview of the unique set of challenges facing Native nation leaders, and explores the critical role that leadership plays in the nation-building process. Featuring the firsthand perspectives of more than 75 Native leaders and scholars, it paints a sharp contrast between the standard and nation-building approaches to leadership, and presents more than a dozen strategies that nation-building leaders typically pursue.

Available for Purchase at the Seminar:

Rebuilding Native Nations: Strategies for Governance and Development
Edited by Miriam Jorgensen

Rebuilding Native Nations addresses issues ranging from constitution-making to inter-governmental relations, from tribal judicial systems to nation-owned enterprises.
